Note on hands

The text of this letter, including the subscription, is in Grey's usual hand; Grey has added his customary autograph signature. The address is in Spenser's characteristic secretary hand, and the endorsement, presumably added later during the filing process in London, is in a distinct hand. The 'addressee note' at the foot of the page is probably in Grey's hand; these notes were added by Grey, or by the secretary drafting the text of the letter, to remind the secretary sealing the letter to whom it should be addressed.

* Address {especiall}} some parts of this word are obscured by damage across one of the folds of the letter; the word and its spelling, however, are clear from the consistency of Spenser's addresses across the letters from Grey to Walsingham.

* 12 Dessm{ond}} damage to the right side of the manuscript has effaced these characters, if indeed Grey did not abbreviate the name 'Dessm.'. In either case, the intention is clear.

* 27 {m}r] cropping of the left side of the manuscript and/or the binding process has obscured part of the 'm' here.
